Physician recruiting is important for small hospitals with limited emergency general surgery (EGS) access, and can help maintain surgical services in rural areas. This study examined factors associated with increased EGS physician recruitment in rural areas. Statewide EGS active-duty recruiters and their providers were surveyed about in-state recruiting (ie, recruitment by those applying to stay in the state after residency) and out-of-state recruiting (ie, all recruitment by physicians' groups, philanthropic organizations, and private companies) to provide referral f678ea9f9e
